October 28, 2014

CSHQA BOISE OFFICE WINS ASID INTERMOUNTAIN CHAPTER DESIGN EXCELLENCE AWARD

CSHQA has won the ASID Intermountain Chapter (ID, MT, UT and WY) Design Excellence Award for excellence in interior design for CSHQA's Boise Office Building. The American Society of Interior Designers (ASID) is the largest professional organization for interior designers representing all facets of both residential and commercial design.

CSHQA provided all planning, design and development services to renovate a 19,745-SF 1950's brick and CMU warehouse property into a modern, state-of-the-art space for its Boise office. A conservative budget required the interior design team to source a number of materials themselves and help plan the adaptation and modification of exiting furniture for re-use in the new space. The project vision was to create a living laboratory showcasing high-performance design. This was accomplished by utilizing interior products and lighting that CSHQA's customers would potentially use. The interior finish scheme was based on the use of bold colors with one long wall replicating a paint chip. Building materials were specified to help achieve LEED® credits including recycled content, locally resourced and low-emitting volatile organic compounds. The project is LEED® registered with the goal of achieving LEED® Platinum.

# #

CSHQA (www.cshqa.com) has offices in six western states including Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Oregon and Washington and provides full service architectural, engineering and planning services for retail, educational, aviation, medical, commercial and government clients in throughout the US.

# #

CSHQA Interiors Team (L-R):
Megumi Haus, Nicole Cecil and Sam White

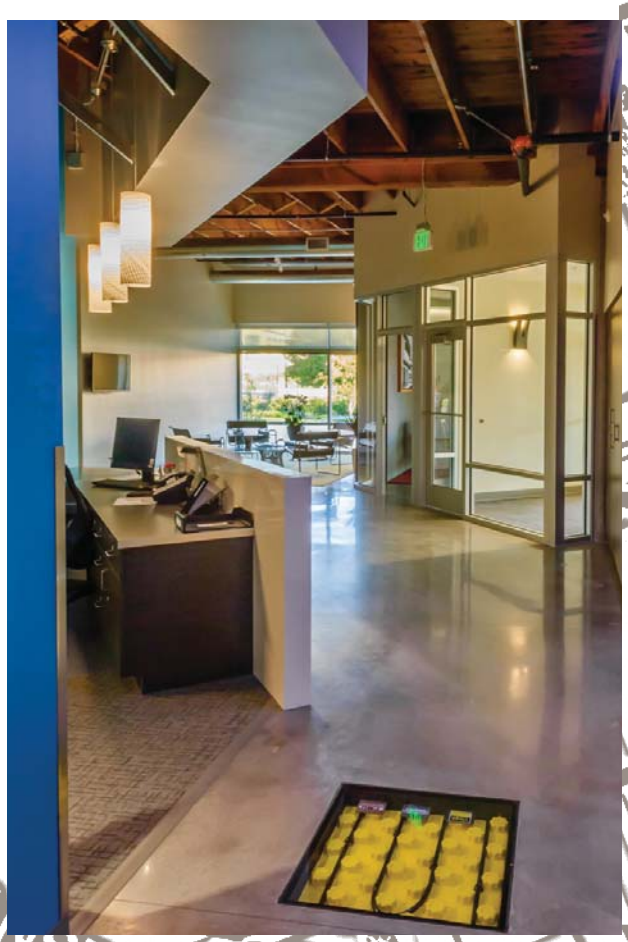

News Flash

CSHOA

Copyright, Marc Walters Photography

Copyright, Marc Walters Photography

News Flash