Neil H. Smull, FAIA, ASLA – CSHQA Co-founder dies 1922-2012

BOISE, ID, March 18, 2012 — Neil H. Smull, FAIA, ASLA and President Emeritus of CSHQA, died at home at the age of 90 on Sunday, March 18, 2012. His wife, Margaret "Fritz" Smull, 89, had passed away just eight days earlier on March 10, 2012. Neil was recognized and admired by many as an educator, architect, civic leader, mentor and friend. He devoted many years of dedicated service to his profession, his community and worldwide causes throughout his life.

Neil received his bachelor and master degrees in architecture from Kansas State University. He also served as a professor and instructor at Kansas State and Michigan State University. Neil joined CSHQA in 1961 where he spent 25 years as a principal architect designing projects across the United States. He was a registered architect in Idaho, Kansas, Nevada, Oregon, and certified by the National Council of Architectural Registration Boards (NCARB). He was also a licensed landscape architect (ASLA) in Idaho. He was one of Idaho's leading designers for many educational, financial, and commercial facilities. Some of his most notable projects include Liberty and Amity elementary schools, Imperial Plaza, Morrison-Knudsen World Headquarters (now Washington Group Plaza I); Sun Valley Bank; Bank of Idaho Headquarters (now KeyBank) and KTVB Television Studio and office building. Long before energy costs escalated, Neil incorporated energy-efficient concepts into his designs, earning him local, regional and national recognition. Neil retired from CSHQA in 1986.

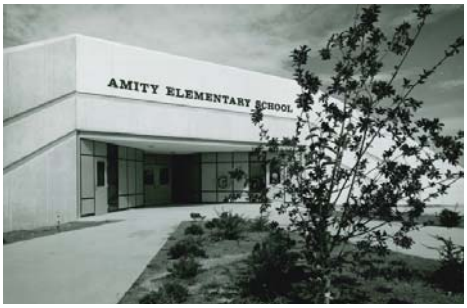

Devoted to numerous activities with civic and charitable organizations, he served in many capacities locally and nationally. He traveled extensively around the world, participating in various professional organizations, including The American Institute of Architects (AIA). He was elected to the AIA National College of Fellows (FAIA) in 1993 and, in 2001, received the prestigious AIA Idaho Gold Medal in Architecture award during the 50th Anniversary celebration of the AIA Idaho Chapter.

Smull's legacy lives on today as CSHQA continues to provide architecture and engineering services locally and nationwide. Established in Boise, ID in 1889 by architect, W. S. Campbell as a one-person firm, CSHQA carries on as a progressive leader in the design and building industry. Today, with more than 85 employees, CSHQA's main office remains in Boise with branch offices located in West Sacramento, CA; Phoenix, AZ; Denver, CO and Glide, OR.

A memorial service for both Neil and Fritz Smull will be held on Saturday, April 14, 2012 at 10:30 am at The Cathedral of the Rockies located at 717 N. 11th St., Boise, Idaho.
